As Senior Advisor, Bill established “Reading Roundtables” in Arizona and California that brought together on a regular basis state-level educational, professional, and volunteer agencies; foundations; businesses and other organizations interested in improving early childhood education.

He was awarded the Presidential Senior Executive Service (SES) Meritorious Rank Award and nominated twice by the Secretary of Education for the Presidential SES Distinguished Rank Award. He also received numerous SES performance awards and special achievement awards. His work in Region IX for the California Reads Roundtable was nominated for the prestigious Hammer Award for its role in making significant contributions in support of reinventing government.
